

AAH

ASSOCIATION OF ART HISTORIANS

2012

AAH2012 38th Annual Conference & Bookfair

The Open University, Milton Keynes
29-31 March 2012

AAH2012 will showcase the diversity and richness of art history and visual culture. This international, three-day event will profile a broad scope of geographies and methodologies, ranging from object-based studies, socio-historical analyses and theoretical discourses, to exhibition cultures and display. Sessions and papers will reflect the composition of the wide constituency that is art history today. Like The Open University itself, the 2012 annual conference is open to all people, places and ideas.

AAH2012 will take place at The Open University's Walton Hall Campus, which is set in the beautiful Buckinghamshire countryside, close to Milton Keynes.

Keynote Speakers

Penelope Curtis

Director, Tate Britain

Lord Puttnam

Chancellor, The Open University

For more information and online booking, visit www.aah.org.uk/annual-conference

